

Ensuring Individual Regulatory Compliance under the new Consumer Duty

Consumer Duty is already having a large-scale shift. It not only affects how organisations view and take responsibility for consumer outcomes, but it affects corporate and individual compliance requirements, accountability processes, and data systems.

This regulation is grounded in good outcomes in order to both improve financial market functions as well as promoting decisions that are positive for consumers. Organisations will need to revise their individual compliance frameworks to accommodate these new requirements.

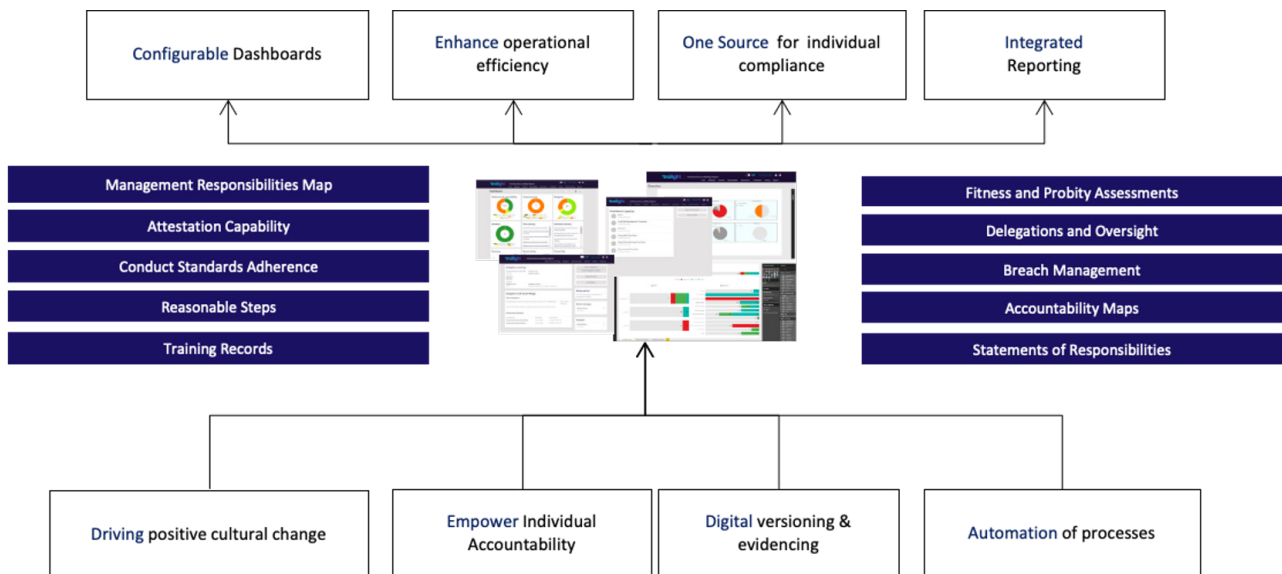

Human-centric regulatory compliance with Trailight.

Trailight is a human-centric individual regulatory compliance platform, purpose built for financial services. This transformative cloud-only solution empowers organisations globally to achieve transparency and accountability through one central platform.

Trailight supports organisations under the new Consumer Duty to allocate responsibilities clearly and creates processes under the new regime, such as reasonable steps and attestations, to ensure individuals and organisations are supported to avoid harm and create good outcomes.

The Trailight platform meets key requirements under Consumer Duty objectives:

- ✓ Products and services
- ✓ Price and value
- ✓ Consumer understanding
- ✓ Consumer support

Get in touch to support good outcomes

The Trailight team will help you tailor the capabilities to the specific requirements, roles and responsibilities of the Consumer Duty and your organisation.

Contact our team to discuss your needs today.

Together, we can build a more transparent workplace.